School Report.

In accordance with a long established custom the School Board submits its annual report to the citizens of Sandwich.

The past, year though generally uneventful, has been one of progress in the advancement of education; a school year which contains much of gratifying success. The most valuable and enduring gift with which a town can endow its sons and daughters is a thorough and practical education. Of far greater worth to the child is this than any transitory wealth that can be lavished upon him.

Pupils must be taught to think rapidly, reason clearly, and decide wisely; and we as members of the board of education, most certainly realize, that as a means to such an end as this a corps of efficient teachers are necessary, neither do we hesitate to say, that in the main such teachers have been employed; teachers who were mindful of their duty to the children. By no means does the successful school depend alone upon the school board and teachers. Be it remembered that home co-operation is an important factor in the education of the young. Far better would it be, for all concerned, if the parents would stand back of those who are endeavoring to work for the good of the schools, instead of so often listening to and acting upon the complaints of their children. We invite, we urge, we would that we might compel the fathers and mothers to visit the schools. Until this is done, until "Seeing is believing," righteous judgment cannot be passed. Irregularity in attendance and a prevailing tardiness prevent many scholars in the town from getting the full benefit of the schools. Can the parents expect uninterrupted progress on the part of their children, unless they are constantly encouraging the development of that enviable virtue—punctuality?

The benefits to be derived from promptness by no means end with the school life. It is in the common schools that the boys and girls lay the foundation for future usefulness, and it is for the parents and teachers to see to it that the foundation is made up of the best material. Whoever asserts that the meagre educational advantages afforded him in his youth are good enough for his children and are all he is willing to pay for, is quite as lacking in discernment, as in paternal interest and solicitude, and the community in which such educational views prevail has much need to be delivered from itself.

The parent who is thus wedded to the good old times will in after years find his children not only relegated to the humble walks of life but even here given a subordinate place because brought into competition with intelligent labor. The man who most intelligently and conscientiously strives to secure the largest heritage of good for our youth most surely promotes the material interests of his own household, community, and state. This fall we changed the Harper's Arithmetic which has been in use for some ten years, and introduced the New Franklin, which is a decided change for the better, and both teachers and scholars are much pleased with them. We have also purchased a map of New England for each school. In the way of permanent repairs we have had the Lower Corner and Chick school houses plastered, and one side of the North Sandwich and Fellows school houses shingled. In consequence of the Session Laws passed in 1895 the statistical reports end with the first day of August of each year; and the school year begins with the fall term. Session Laws, 1895, pages 395-6.
